

THUMBS UP FOR LITTLE CREATURES

There are butterflies, spiders, worms, bugs and all sorts of strange and curious little creatures moving around in our outdoor world. They are fun to watch and follow, but do remember that they must live free and not be hurt or confined.

These creatures have work to do in nature. Ladybirds and spiders eat bugs that could destroy crops. Butterflies and bees spread pollen, which helps fruit and flowers to grow. Worms turn the soil, keeping plants healthy.

Still want to get a hands-on and close up of these little creatures?

All you need is your thumb, an inkpad/lead pencil, a crayon and a little bit of imagination.

Rub the pencil over the ball of your thumb or press your thumb on an inkpad and put your print on the pictures below.

The first one has been done for you already.
